" CLASS PROPHECY "

...and there we were, pulling up to the Paul Martinson Hotel, where the class of '76 was having its reunion. The building was designed by the Randy Dyrendahl and Jim Scoville Drafting Firm, and was decorated by interior decorator, Susan Hoff. Entering the dining room, we saw that head cooks Roger Lee and Scott Ford were waiting for orders to bring the food out from the kitchen. But before we began to eat, we had a little predinner music from Jay Snustad and Laurie Hetland. After the musical selection was finished, we all sat down and waited for the meal, which consisted of pork roast, from the John Jossund Pork Farm, potatoes, and corn. Oh, oh, the lights went out. Luckily we had electricians Dave Koste and Mitch Larson in our midst; they will be able to fix them. Ah, the lights came back on, but where were Larry Aabye and Kim Bax of Practical Jokes, Inc.? Detective Linda Houglum took the case and finally tracked them down in the kitchen, testing out the roast. Chris Olson, co-ordinator of the reunion, informed us that Tom Strand would not be able to attend, because he had to finish the back forty. Accountant Charlene Johnson told us that after checking the school books, the class of '76 still had $1.25 in their treasury. After we had finished eating, Julie Ohnstad and Jeanine Houglum said that they had to be leaving, because of a previous engagement. So they said their good-byes and left, or so we thought because in about ten minutes they returned, telling us their car would not start. So Charley Olson went and helped them on their way. Shortly thereafter the animal clinic called veterinarian Lori Loughheed and told her that she was needed. Lori left and the party soon ended.
